Covid-19 and Quarantine

The Basics

- Medical Expenses and Medically Necessary Evacuation or Repatriation - there are no limitations or exclusions in relation to treatment or medical transportation related to COVID-19, it is treated as any other illness.
- Testing is covered if ordered by a physician or mandated by a local or national authority mandated as a contract tracing operation following confirmed exposure with a Covid positive person.
- Testing is not covered if ordered by a local or national authority for a requirement of travel (entry or exit requirements).
- Testing is not covered if ordered by any entity other than a medical professional or local/national authorities.
- Vaccine or Booster – not covered.

General advice

1. Be prepared to incur additional expenses due to quarantine/isolation. Even if you have benefits through your program to reimburse costs, there are certain expenses you will need to pay out of pocket and submit a claim for regardless.

2. Medical infrastructure in many locations remains overextended. This means:
   a. Appointments can take longer for On Call to arrange.
   b. You should expect longer wait times for walk-in appointments at clinics or emergency departments.
   c. Many providers are understaffed, which means they may decline to accept guarantees of payment from On Call due to the administrative obligations.

3. For the reasons stated above, it is recommended that you make your best effort to be prepared to pay out of pocket for at least $500.00 of medical expenses in the event you choose not to wait for On Call to make the appointment and/or there is not a provider available that will accept an On Call payment. Remember that you can go to any provider; you do not need to alert On Call for the expense to be reimbursed through the claim process.

4. On Call is not a first responder – in a medical emergency, use local emergency response or go to the closest medical facility and contact On Call when it is safe to do so.

Quarantine Advice

The purpose of the quarantine benefit is to cover additional costs incurred due to unforeseen quarantine/isolation. The benefit does not cover expenses lost for travel plans interrupted or cancelled due to quarantine/isolation.
When the Quarantine Benefit may apply:

- The host country has mandatory isolation requirements if you test positive for Covid-19 (government or national health authority)
- You are denied boarding of public transportation that you booked in advance due to the providers own testing requirements.
- A physician orders isolation following a positive Covid-19 test

What to do:
Contact the 24/7 Global Response Center to open a case. Advise if you need help finding a location for an official test OR if it is not clear whether the country you are in has a mandatory requirement, request that On Call make you an appointment to obtain an official test result and doctor’s note for isolation requirement.

Ensuring you have the acceptable proof of claim:
- At-home testing kit is not acceptable as proof of a Covid+ result.
- In a country or region that DOES require mandatory isolation:
  - Ensure you have proof of a positive test administered by a physician or official testing provider (online or in-person).
- If you are denied boarding:
  - Ensure to obtain a copy of the providers requirements that led to your denied boarding and proof of a positive test administered by a physician or official testing provider (online or in-person)
  - Ensure you submit proof of pre-booked reservations (note: the quarantine benefit is not reimbursement of lost travel expenses)
- In a country or region that does not have mandatory isolation requirements:
  - Contact On Call to request an appointment.
  - Be sure to end the appointment with both proof of a positive test results administered by a medical facility, and a doctor’s note ordering your isolation with the required number of days.

Managing Quarantine Expenses:
On Call will do everything we can to pre-pay for large expenses incurred due to quarantine; however, you may choose to proceed with certain arrangements to meet your immediate needs at any time:

1. If current accommodations can be extended to meet the quarantine requirement – you don’t have to wait for On Call to do this. Try speaking with the hotel front desk or manager to extend your stay and ask them if they are willing to provide an invoice for the additional nights to On Call to pay via credit card. You can send in an email to On Call (mail@oncallinternational.com) with your official positive C-19 test result along with the invoice and your case number.

2. If current accommodations can be extended by a third-party program provider that made the original group arrangements – in lieu of On Call paying the hotel directly, the 3rd party provider can make the arrangements and send an invoice to On Call for reimbursement.

3. When possible, self-pay and claim smaller additional expenses such as food. The quarantine benefit includes coverage for reasonable “additional expenses” aside from hotel, food, and flight changes. Food is a per diem reimbursement of $50 up to 14 days. For other expenses, save receipts for any expenses incurred that you would not have incurred if not for unforeseen quarantine. You can submit these for reimbursement consideration, keeping in mind your program’s overall quarantine benefit limit.

4. When possible, changes to existing flights can be made by you, the traveler. On Call cannot change flights that were booked with an agency and the quarantine benefit requires changed flights vs. booking new flights whenever there is a viable option. However, On Call can assist in booking when a change to an existing flight is not possible.

5. If a faculty or staff member needs to stay with one or more quarantined travelers to act as a chaperone, the quarantined traveler’s quarantine benefit limit can be shared to accommodate lodging and additional expenses for the chaperone. Unused portions of the quarantine benefit can be used by the chaperone; however, the overall benefit limit does not change.

   The chaperone’s claim should reference the case number(s) of the quarantined traveler(s).

6. If a faculty or staff member has paid expenses on behalf of a quarantined traveler and needs to seek reimbursement, the claim form needs to be completed and signed by the quarantined traveler, with payment assignment instructions for the reimbursement to go to the faculty or staff.
